

The study aim at determining the effect of water stress and N & P fertilizer application on root penetration, growth parameters and performance of selected rice genotype